COOKING STOVES

Something New in the Way of

Cooking Stoves.

CULVER BROTHERS' ELEVATED OVEN

Farmers' Cooking Stoves.

WE have sold over 4,000 of the above Cooking Stoves in Kentucky in the past 18 months, and about 300 from Frankfort in the last six weeks, and still the demand for them is on the increase. This stove is made of the best quality of iron, and is finished in a very superior style.

We give below a few of the many recommendations that we are daily receiving from some of the citizens of this city and county, as to the superior quality of our stoves, and could add a hundred more. It doesn't need a word. These gentlemen are as really known to everybody, in this country as it is possible to be. For information apply at Wat on's hotel.

Frankfort, Aug. 24, 1868.

I purchased one of Culver Brothers' Elevated Ovens from Culver Brothers in short time ago, and can cheerfully recommend it. It can be heated with less wood and do better baking in a shorter time, than any stove I have ever used before, besides being handsome and convenient. B. F. MEIER.

We take great pleasure in recommending Culver Brothers' Farmer Cook Stove to all who are in want of a good article. This stove having no damper to obstruct the draft, it necessarily draws well, and no inside plates to burn out makes it more durable and less liable to injury. Each of us having one in use we cheerfully recommend it to our neighbors and friends.

AGAIN,

Oh! sweet and fair! oh rich and rare! That day so long ago! The Autumn sunshine every where, The heater all aglow.

The terms were clad in the cloth of gold, The waves sang on the shore! Such sins will shine, such waves will sing, Forever, evermore!

Oh! fit and few, oh tried and true! The friends that met that day; Each one the other's spirit knew— And so, in earnest play.

The hours flew past, until at last, The twilight kissed the shore! We said, "Such days shall come again— Forever, evermore!"

One day again, no cloud of pain A shadow o'er us cast; And yet we strove in vain, in vain, To conjure up the past;

Like but unlike the sun that shone— The waves that beat the shore. The words we said, the songs we sung, Like—unlike—evermore!

For ghosts unseen, erept in between, And when our songs flowed free, Sang discord in an undertone; And marred the harmony.

"The past is ours, not yours," they said "The waves that beat the shore. Though like the same are not the same, Oh! never, nevermore!"

From the Frankfort Yeoman.

The Late Governors Powell and Helm.

Biographical sketch of the Hon. Lazarus W. Powell, Governor of the State of Kentucky from 1851 to 1855, and Senator in Congress from 1859 to 1865.

Biographical sketch of the Hon. Jno. L. Helm, late Governor of Kentucky.

The above are the titles of two sketches prepared under a joint resolution of the last General Assembly, and now in the hands of the Public Binder. They are both comprised in one volume, and accompanied by portraits of the deceased.

As is well observed by the joint committee appointed to prepare the work, in their preface, the department of biography is one of the most difficult fields of literary experiment. By adhering to the mere record of one's public life, the tendency is to assume the style of the historian, or else, in descending to the minute details of the every-day life of the deceased, it is only in rare instances, as in the case of Boswell's Life of Johnson, that such efforts do not sink below the level of criticism. To preserve a record of this double life—to narrate and commemorate one's services to the State, and at the same time to present a picture of his domestic life—giving the incidents of his private history, and setting forth the minor details of personal biography which more clearly illustrate character, and make the example of the world's great valuable—this combination in biographical literature is as rare as it is admirable. In the works before us, fidelity in attempting to adhere to this standard of excellence seems to have been the uppermost aim of the writer, and it will be conceded by all the friends of the illustrious dead that the effort has been attended with gratifying success. In each the private and public life are treated with as much minuteness of detail as the scope of the memoirs admit; and while, in laying them down, we could not but regret that they were so brief, they yet afford a lasting and worthy memorial of the affection and gratitude of a people for whose interest and honor they labored so earnestly. The lessons taught by the narrative of their lives is both interesting and instructive—containing, as they do, much to stimulate by their example, and marked with many striking coincidences.

In age, Governor Powell was the junior by ten years. Born in the State at an early period in its history, when the facilities for education were limited, he both rose to prominence in the profession of law, and serving in various official capacities, each lived to become Governor of the Commonwealth, and died within a few months of the other. Of different political associations in earlier years, they lived to be united in the same faith, and dying, to elicit the regret of a united people. The same General Assembly pronounced the eulogies of both, and in the volume before us have sought to enshrine their memory and to make their lives of value as an example to posterity. As such a monument it is valuable, and will be read with interest by all. Its style, while showing commendable care in preparation, and evincing facility in composition, is never amenable to the charge of pedantry. The facts of notes, with which the letter-press is accompanied, contain interesting biographies in miniature of Kentuckians living or dead, or add to the completeness of the narrative by the addition of some incident or fact pertinent to the subject-matter.

The committee appointed by the General Assembly to prepare the work are Hon. J. M. Alexander and Hon. B. J. Week, of the Senate; and

Hons. J. A. McKenzie, S. I. M. Major and R. M. Spalding, of the House.

As is necessary in such cases, while each of the joint committee rendered service, and deserve credit for the work performed, it has fallen to the lot of one of the number to collate the material and give unity to the whole. Those familiar with the style of Hon. R. J. Week, and knowing his laborious and systematic devotion to such duties, will have no difficulty in recognizing in both works the evidences of his careful pen and his idiosyncrasies of thought and expression. Especially was the preparation of the life of Governor Powell, who was endeared to him by school-day associations, a labor of love; and most creditably has he paid the tribute of a friend's devotion.

In addition to the biographies, there are attached to each the addresses delivered in each House on the occasion of the formal announcement of their death—Senators Spalding, Worthington and Webb, and Representative Magoffin, Spalding, Lillard, and Glass, pronouncing eulogies on Governor Powell, while those on Gov. Helm were passed by Senators Fiel, Winchester, and Baker, and by Representatives McAfee, Phister, and Keat. They all breathe the same spirit of sincere and affectionate admiration, and are tributes to public worth and private virtue which the descendants of the deceased may well cherish as monuments more precious than those made with hands.

Marry Her First.

Many years ago, in what is now a flourishing city, lived a stalwart blacksmith, fond of his pipe and his joke. He was also fond of his blooming daughter, whose many graces had ensnared a young printer. The couple, after a session of billing and cooing, "engaged themselves," and nothing but the consent of the young lady's parents prevented their union. To obtain this an interview was arranged, and the type prepared a little speech to admonish and convince the old man, who sat enjoying his pipe in perfect content. The type dilated on the fact of their long friendship, their mutual attachment, their hopes for the future, and like topics; and taking the daughter by the hand, he said: "I am now, sir, to ask your permission to transplant this lovely flower from its parent bed"—but his feelings overcame him, and he forgot the rehearsal of his oratorical flourish, stammered, and finally wound up with, "from its parental bed into my own." The father keenly relished this discomfiture of the suitor, and removing his pipe and blowing a cloud, replied: "Well, young man, I don't know as I have any objection provided you marry the girl first."

DESPONDENCY.—What right has a person, endowed with an ordinary share of intellect, and blessed with a respectable share of good health, to despond? What is the cause of despondency? What is the meaning of it? The cause is a weak mind and the meaning is sin. Providence never intended that one of His creatures should be the victim of a desire to feel and look the gloom of the thunder-cloud. Never despond, friendly reader, for one of the first entrances of vice to the heart is made through the instrumentality of despondency. Although we cannot expect all our days and hours to be gilded by sunshine, we must not, for mere momentary griefs, suppose that they are to be enshrouded in the mists of misery and misfortune.

ABOUT PAPER.—One of the most important items in the cost of a paper is the paper itself. Some of the statistics of the New York Tribune, the largest sized paper published, will show its extent. Its paper weighs 65 pounds per ream (240 sheets), and measures 37 by 47 3/5 inches; one issue of the 240,000 copies of the Weekly Tribune weighs 31,200 lbs over fifteen tons. This makes a column three feet by two at the base, and one hundred and forty feet high. The paper used by the Tribune establishment during the year is about fifteen hundred tons, costing over $300,000 which if piled, would make a monument of solid intelligence one mile high and four feet square. Something like twenty-five million sheets pass through their presses every year.

Wendell Phillips is urging on to extreme measures. He demands an impeachment of President Johnson, the removal of the present United States officers in New Orleans, the re-instatement of Gen. Sheridan in that city, the "revision and amendment" of the reconstruction laws, and the recognition of the right of the colored population to vote and hold the office everywhere. And he declares that it is not within the power of General Grant, if it be his disposition, to materially obstruct the progress of Radical reformation in national politics.

Social Life.

How pleasant it is to have social intercourse with those we love! To talk with congenial souls, those having passed through similar experiences, born on our native soil. The lodge is a favorable place to cultivate these social relations. Deep and firm will grow the roots of affection, if we make the soil rich and yellow. And inestimable will be our loss if we lose the pleasures and ties which may there be formed. A kind word costs nothing. A warm grasp of the hand costs nothing. A smile costs nothing. A friendly twinkle of the eye costs nothing. And how much joy or sorrow depends on the grasp of the hand, a kind word, a look, or a smile! There is no greater talent than the talent to be genial. It gives a man power and all the stars of night seem not so lovely as his presence. And this talent can be cultivated by all of us. It will grow and blossom beautifully and shed its fragrance everywhere, if we will but give the sunshine and the shower.

Color blindness is much more common than many suppose, and considerable attention has been given to the subject in France. As this aberration of sight has been the cause of grave errors on railroads, the companies' surgeons at present are most particular in testing, on this point, the candidates for employment. Dr. Farve, at Parrache stated that the number of applicants whom he had been obliged to refuse because they were incapable of distinctly telling a green light from a red one was very considerable. Men who are employed to attend railway colored signals in this country ought to be examined on this point.

An old fashioned clergyman, named More, was riding on horseback one stormy day, enveloped in a loose riding cloak of large proportions, and having a broad scarlet collar. By the action of the wind, the cloak was tossing about in all directions, when a gentleman rode up on a spirited horse, which shied, and almost threw the rider. "That cloak of yours would lighten the devil," said he. "You don't say so," why, that is just my trade," replied Mr. More.

In New Jersey three Democrats are elected to Congress and two Republicans—a gain of one. In the Legislature the Democrats will have three majority in the Senate and four in the House, on a joint ballot seven. This gives them the United States Senator in place of Frelinghuysen, Republican. Seymour's majority is about 3,000, while that of Randolph, Democratic candidate for Governor, is over 6,000.

A young gentleman the other day asked a young lady what she thought of the married state in general? "Not knowing, I can't tell," was the reply. "But if you and I were to put our heads together, I could soon give you a definite answer."

There is a place in New Hampshire where they never have any old maids. When a girl reaches twenty-nine, and is still on the ladder of expectation, the young fellows club together, and draw lots for her. Those who escape pay a bonus to the one who gets her.

&lt;

The Chicago Post says: "The election of General Grant is likely to work considerable change in Kentucky journalism. Isham Henderson, a wealthy gentleman, who was for many years one of the proprietors of the Louisville Journal, has bought the Louisville Democrat, and it is said, convert it into a Republican paper. There are rumors, also, that to flank this movement, the Courier-Journal will support the administration of Grant. Walter N. Haldeman, who is now the principal owner of the latter paper, was once a clerk in the old Journal office, when Geo. D. Prentice was a power in the nation. Now the Journal is no more, and Prentice himself is an employee of Mr. Haldeman. Such are the changes of time. It is not likely that the Louisville Journal will ever reflect the individuality of former days. Prentice, Harney and Penn, were once a powerful trio in Kentucky. Traditions of their editorial combats will doubtless linger for a time in the semi-barbarous legends of the Southern press, but will at last fade from the memories of men. Mr. Prentice's name will, however, go down to the future as that of a true but not voluminous poet. As he now in the evening of his life, looks back over the blackened waste of thirty years of devotion to false social and governmental theories and practices, it may well give him pleasure to behold the pure poetic flame he has kindled in his youth still brightly burning."

Letter from Macon, Missouri.

Macon, Mo., Nov. 23, 1868.

Editor News:—About the last of next April, it will have been twenty years since I emigrated to Missouri from Cynthiana, where I was born and lived until my twentieth year, nearly a quarter of a century. And yet my affection for the old town is undiminished, and as warm as ever. I have traveled a good deal, seen many places, resided in two States, and in several towns of one, yet never have I seen the spot, to which I became as much attached as I am to that little valley on the Licking River, sacred to me by a thousand cherished recollections.

I never can, nor would I, if I could, forget the associates of my boyhood, or the kindnesses received from many of the old citizens, now no more, and many yet in life, and I hope with prospects of many years to come. Some of them with whom I had boyish rivalries are dead, among whom Jno. Trimble, J. McThompson and J. C. Curry; others, like myself, have left the place of their nativity, or early adoption, to seek fame and fortune in other States; of these are James J. Linley, T. C. Ware, Jno. L. Morrison, R. H. and A. Musser, W. T. Withers and Montgomery Boyd, while a few more, more lucky, remained, and found what we sought in the far West, fortune and distinction, neither, nor both of which will compensate for the loss of home feeling, and the freedom and confidence with which one associates with those among whom he was reared. Of those who were wise enough to make their battle of life where they were born, are A. H. Ward, W. W. Trimble and J. S. Boyd.

If I had my life to pass over again, and could regulate it by the experience I have acquired, I would content myself on the bank of the Licking River, within two hundred yards of the public spring, and an equal distance from the old stone bridge on the Clayville road—the latter, the workmanship of James Chambers, I believe, a pious and highly respected citizen, now, if alive, a resident of Coles county, Illinois.

Cynthiana is now old enough to have her traditions, and she needs an "old mortality," periodically to review the inscription upon the grave stones of her honored dead, and relate to the rising generation, the virtues and history of some of the most noted people who have lived there, but are now sleeping in the old grave yard north of town. I am afraid that over the graves of the Moore boys, there has not yet been placed a slab or anything to indicate that in that narrow house are the remains of a revolutionary patriot. He died before I was born, but so often have I heard the circumstances of his death and burial related, how with the honors of war he was borne to his last resting place, and all the pomp and ceremony of the occasion, that until corrected by those who knew better, I thought that I had witnessed the imposing spectacle.

Many noble spirits have passed from Cynthiana to the other world. Permit me to name a few who should not be forgotten:

Col. Miller, a kind-hearted, noble old man, whose descendants are still among you, respected for the integrity which they inherited from their ancestor. Andrew Moore, for years clerk of the Circuit Court, of Harrison; Ashberry and M. Broadwell; Thos. Rankin; F. B. and Uriah Woodard; Job. M. January; Wm. K. Wall, his brother-in-law, an able lawyer and an eloquent advocate, but higher praise than this he deserves, he was an honest man and a kind, warm-hearted friend and neighbor. I was, for sometime, in his office as a law student, and have seen him engaged in most intricate and exciting cases, and yet in a more trying situation, as a candidate for political preferment, when party contests were even more embittered than now, yet I never saw him lose his patience, or dignity, or gentlemanly bearing.

Jno. Trimble, the most indefatigable lawyer I have ever known, a man of marvelous acquirements in his profession, and with fewer eccentricities, and a little more attention to the graces, would have been one of the first men in the State. I could say more in his praise, but he was, by marriage, my uncle, and it would perhaps be thought indelicate.

Dr. Joel Frazer was another of Cynthiana's great men. An eminent physician and a man of elegant manners, and gentle, warm heart.

There are a few of the most prominent of seers of worthy men, whose memories should be cherished by the people of Cynthiana. Some of the old men of that class, are still alive, links between the present and the past generation, who appear to have been left as sentinels, to observe when the places of the dead should be properly filled, before they should go to join their associates in the city of the silent dead. Cherish them while they remain with you; nurse and tend them in their decrepitude and infirmity. They are worthy of your care. The memories of those of you who are living in the old town do not run back like ours.

The events that are transpiring around you occupy your minds, so that you have but little time for retrospection, but those of us who have been absent for many years, only remember the town as it was when we left it, and when anything causes us to recur to those times, the events that occupy our minds are those that then transpired, or are traditional. I have a very distinct recollection of the construction that prevailed in Cynthiana in 1833, when the cholera almost decimated the population. Men in good health at sunrise, were in their grave clothes at noon. I saw old Mr. Isett on the street one morning, and before sunset he was a corpse. It made an impression upon my mind which will never be effaced. The great fire, which about that time, destroyed a large portion of the town, including Capt. Thompson's brick hotel, is another event that is indelibly fixed in my memory—added with the unfortunate, accidental killing of Scott, and the mysterious fate of Henry Snyder—found dead in a well near the McMiller property—whether it was an accident, a suicide, or murder, has never, I believe, been determined.

Another reminiscence, of a more agreeable character, is the old Cynthiana Thespian Society, organized some twenty-eight or thirty years ago, by Jno. M. Timberlake, Henry and John Mathews, W. A. Moore, W. Miller, Wm. Cromwell, H. Corvine, A. P. Derby, J. P. Henry, S. T. Wade and others, whose names I have forgotten. Timberlake in tragedy, were actors, who would have received applause in any theatre in the United States. Poor Timberlake; his life was a tragedy. I have seen tragedies superior to Timberlake, yet I have seen some of national renown, not a whit better, but I have never seen any better comedians than Corvine and Derby. Those who witnessed, will never forget the performance of "Family Jars" by the Cynthiana Amateurs. They had monthly performances, generally on the night of county court day, and among those who, from the country, frequently remained in town to witness the performance, was Park Whitaker, (son of old Josiah) who contributed, by his remarks upon the play as it progressed, as much to the amusement of the audience, as Corvine or Derby in their happiest efforts.

At that time Cynthiana had no railroad, or turnpikes. It was an obscure, isolated village, so much so that those who lived in more pretentious towns, such as Lexington, Georgetown, and Paris, located in the Licking river, yet it contained as intelligent, genial and hospitable a population as could be found in Kentucky, or in the world.

Ten years ago I was at Cynthiana. Many changes had taken place, but there was enough of this old town left, to revive many pleasant memories. I have frequently thought that it would be a most interesting occasion, if, at some designated time, all of the scattered Cynthians, and they are everywhere, could be gathered together once more in the old town, in a social reunion. I make the motion, shall I have a second.

NATIVE.

About ten days since we visited Midway, in Woodford county, and found it full of thrift and enterprise. There were appearances of progress about the place which is not found in every town. In the center of the town we found a modest monument erected to the memory of Col. Wm. R. McKee, commander of the 2nd Regiment of Kentucky Volunteers, at the battle of Buena Vista, and where he fell mortally wounded, leading his regiment to victory.

The Midway Orphan School is situated near this place, and is a very respectable building. It is under the control of Elder Broadhurst, an excellent gentleman well qualified for the position he fills. There are seventy-three good-looking young ladies being educated here, all of whom are progressing rapidly in their studies. We called at the school, and accepted an invitation to supper, and when we stepped into the dining room, we were introduced to 73 young ladies, all at the same time, who addressed us in perfect concert, "how do you do, Major Morey?" This to a young man of our universally recognized modesty and diffidence, was very trying. Our innate gallantry speedily came to our relief, and we were able to pass through the ordeal with becoming credit.

This is a noble charity, an asylum for the most unfortunate class, the orphan girls of society—they, who have been bereft of the guiding and protecting care of father and mother, may here find an asylum from the storms and temptations of this life. Though death has taken from them forever, home and its sacred and ennobling influences, and nothing but the power that took can restore, yet this beautiful fruit of Christianity does at least "temper the wind to the shorn lamb." If it be true that the tree shall be known by its fruits, how strong is the argument that the religion in accordance with whose spirit and teachings this and other like charities in the land have sprung up, is divine. The true disciples are found in all the walks of life, as well in the Peasant's cottage as in the halls of the mighty, comforting the disconsolate, clothing the naked, and feeding the hungry—by the bed of pain and sickness, in patient watching they are found pointing the way to life beyond the grave, and catching the last penitential prayer of the soul as it is wafted away forever. We are told they are the salt of the earth—we believe it—and these transcendent glories among them, as a people, are its savor, a savor of life unto life unto each one of these patient laborious, self-sacrificing disciples. The passage through life from the cradle to the grave, is at best, a sad one, for we are stung by nettles, and pricked by thorns at every step, and there is no man but that has seen the hour when encompassed by sorrow-faint and worn, like a hunted deer, he has longed for the oblivion of the grave, but the grave, without hope for the future, is fearful indeed. Then let not the scoffer, the infidel, attempt to take from sorrowing man the pole-star of religion, but let him from all things above, around and about him, learn and confess—that God liveth. The fruits of this institution are apparent even in our midst as all of its graduates are model teachers and christian women, and not one who has ever left the walls of this school but has shown by her walks in life the high moral training and excellent discipline to which she has been subjected. With facts like these before the community, every good man can but call it a success, and every truly pious man and woman, without regard to sect, will remember it in their prayers, and their contributions.

A SUPPER.—The friends of the Confederate Monumental Assn., have in contemplation a Supper to be given at an early day, the proceeds of which will be devoted to the payment for the fine monument which the society will erect in Battle Grove Cemetery next Spring—in honor of the Martyrs of the "Lost Cause," who fell in the battles of Cynthiana.

A meeting of the Society will take place to-night at the store of J. H. Shawhan, for the purpose of devising ways and means to get more means necessary to close the business, as we owe a small balance on the monument. If you love your comrades as you profess, who have gone to their long homes, you will take hold of this work lively.

OBITUARY.

Sad indeed, is it to record the death of any one of our fellow-beings, and sadder still, when called upon to record the death of an old acquaintance, who for long years had been a tried and cherished friend.

But to record the death of a father, mother, sister, brother, son or daughter, stirs the soul to its very center, as in the present case, we are called upon to record the death of MISS VIRGINIA ANN DAY, only daughter of Alfred and Mary Francis Day. She was born the 1st day of August, 1817, received the ordinance of Christian Baptism at the hands of Rev. J. C. Hardy, July 29, 1830, and was received into the fellowship of the church, at Salem, Harrison county, August 1, 1835, by Rev. H. P. Walker, P. E. She was taken in a decline from which she never recovered, though every means were tried, and the professional skill could bring to bare its force, all to no purpose. She continued to sink until the 24th of September, 1868, when she departed this life so calmly and sweetly, that one would have thought, "she slept," but she was the "sleep of death," but her last words were "she was so happy," for she was not afraid to die. So after taking an all-embracing leave of all the earthly friends, as only in the summer's evening pass, so sweetly did her redeemed spirit pass away to the land of the blessed.

May her kind words, or exhortation and request fall into the hearts of those who heard them, as the gentle dew of heaven, and lead them all to prepare for a bright meeting and reunion in that sun-bright land.

Our friends are leaving one by one, and we as a race, left to sigh, As leaves, when Autumn's work is done, Have fallen and lie in the dust.

The ties which bind our spirits here, And give such pleasure to the soul, In all life's busy cares and years, No more can cheer those hearts so cold.

Altho' such thoughts do weigh us down And cast their shadows on our path, Yet still we love them though they frown Upon our tried and weeping faith.

We cherish still the fondest love For those dear ones we once possessed, For surely now they rest above, With saints and angels ever blest.

But shall we meet them all again, When life's great conflict here is past, And shall we then such joy obtain, As when at home we saw them last.

Then do not grieve, dearest, sweetly sleep, In quiet by thy brother's side, Till angel-bands whom Jesus keeps, To bring his saints to a habile.

Then oh, my child, Virginia love, And little Johnny will be heirs, To meet us at the gate above, And bid us welcome, welcome there. J. C. H.

DIED.

On Sunday morning, Nov. 29, 1868, J. B. Nichols, aged about 35 years.

Suddenly on Thursday last, at the residence of her husband, in Bourbon county, Mrs. Mary Keller, aged about 64 years.

You may be too late.

Be warned in time. Diseases like indigestion and dyspepsia are not to be trifled with. There is such a thing as being too late in these matters. Inflammation, or Scirrhus Cancer, or some other dangerous disease may ensue, when all restoratives, no matter how potent, would be ineffectual. Do not delay then. When the symptoms of Dyspepsia first appear, seek relief at once to the great restorative medicine, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, and you will be safe.

But few disorders involve greater suffering, and, if not in itself immediately dangerous, it is the source of many deadly maladies. Even if it did not tend to greater evil, the mental and physical misery it produces is alone a sufficient reason why no pains should be spared to prevent or cure it. In our country on the face of the globe is so completely domesticated, as in our own, where it is found in nearly every household. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters are universally conceded to be the sovereign remedy for this annoying disease, as they act directly upon the digestive organs, correct and tone the stomach, and give renewed vitality to the system. Acting delightfully upon the nerves and soothing the brain, renders them efficient as a mental medicine, as well as a general stomachic. If taken as a preventive, they will be found particularly well suited to the diseases arising from the unhealthy season of autumn, and their use will prevent the creeping, unpleasant sensation often complained of when the chills are stealing slowly upon the patient.

LOCAL MATTER.

Go to Juett's for cheap groceries, on Pike street.

The Criminal Court of Kenton county, will commence in January. Judge J. S. Boyd will be in attendance ready for business.

James Werley, a plasterer, fell from the scaffold in the Christian church, last week, and broke his arm.

Jacob Walton, a man of color, accidentally shot himself in the thigh, last week, from which he came near losing his life.

Jno. W. Fennell, Register in Bankruptcy, will be in Cynthiana and hold a court, December 22, 1868. This is the last round, without more money in the bankruptcy business.

Master C. Magee, son of H. Clay Magee, who resides near this city, was badly hurt last week. A cart loaded with corn run over him. We understand he is recovering.

Gen. Boswell informs us that some person or persons have stolen fifteen head of his fat hogs. We had supposed that the days of hog thieves had passed.

Rev. M. Crow has been holding a revival at Oddville, in this county, in which ten new members were added to the Methodist church.

The Rev. Mr. Barbee and the Rev. Mr. Varden, have just concluded a very interesting meeting on Richmond, in this county, in which eleven members were added to the church at that place.

The official vote of the Catholics of Valparaiso, for a patron saint, shortly after the earthquake, has been received. It stood: "The Adorable Savior of the world," 19,946 votes; "the Most Holy Virgin," 4,132; scattering, 384. The Savior was declared elected, and a solemn Te Deum sung.

Our friend, Dr. Blaydes, of Connersville, in this county, we regret to learn, has removed to Mt. Sterling, Ky., where he proposes to practice his profession. Dr. B. is a kind-hearted gentleman, who proposes to do right under all circumstances—a good physician and a good citizen. We hope he may find many friends in his new home.

Go to J. D. Motche's No. 588 Madison street, Covington, you will find him clever and accommodating, ready to wait upon you to anything in his line, of which he has a splendid and well selected stock, calculated to please the most fastidious, consisting of watches, clocks and jewelry, silver and plated ware, all in the latest and most approved styles. Watches, clocks and jewelry repaired and warranted. He is agent for the Elgin Watch. Nov 19-3m

If you want No. 1 flour, you can get it at Juett's, warranted or no sale.

Powell & Kohler's Practical System for cutting all kinds of garments, can be had by calling on Mrs. Trowbridge at Mr. Bents' on Pike street, who has the sole right for Harrison. It is one of the most perfect systems now in use.

R. M. Wall & Co., have purchased the drug store of M. Jamieson, at Carlisle. Dick is well known here, and we wish him much good luck.

There is to be a grand ball given at the Blue Lick Springs on the 4th of this month.

Walker & Marshall, late members of the 4th Kentucky, C. S. A., purchased the Pointdexter distillery for the sum of $15,500. Tandy Wigglesworth the mill site for $2,001. Mr. Joseph Martin the land for $40 per acre. Indifferent corn brought $19 per acre in the field.

R. A. Whitaker, Justice of the Peace of the 2nd district, resigned his position just before the November election, and the people of the Buena Vista district having declared themselves in favor of Geo. W. Withers, as his successor, Judge Curry has appointed him and sent the papers to the Governor for his approval.

At the sale of J. J. Flournoy, deceased, E. McDaniel, auctioneer, on the 24th ult., milch cows sold for from $50 to $75; spring calves at $40.60 per head; older cattle about 6 cents per pound; common sheep $7 per head; horses from $50 to $100; hay sold for from 9 to $12 per stack.

Rev. H. E. Spillman of the Baptist church at Dayton, Campbell county, Ky., will commence a series of meetings in the Presbyterian church in this city, on Thursday next, the 3d inst., at 7 o'clock, P. M. All are most cordially invited to attend.

Inasmuch as our city is infested by an innumerable number of pestiferous and destructive rats, it has been suggested to us by quite a number of our citizens, that now would be a good time to destroy the hated vermine. We endorse the suggestion, and would recommend that a ratification meeting be held sometime during this month, and that each citizen procure some poison suitable for the purpose, and on a given date bait every house in town.

Col. J. T. Hegg is associated with Mr. Juett, and will be pleased to see his friends and the public generally.

Last week Mr. Jno. T. Webb, of McCombe county, Ill., was in Cynthiana on a visit to his brother, our worthy jailor, I. N. Webb. We understand that Mr. J. W. has just been married the second time, and was here on a bridal trip. It has been twenty-one years since he was here.

On last Monday a very large drove of fine, turkeys passed down Pleasant street to the new slaughter pen, just below McCale's hat shop. C. B. Gillman authorizes us to say that he will pay the highest market price for good turkeys delivered to him. Those having turkeys for sale would do well to give him a call.

Last Saturday a German laborer attempted to cross Licking River at Lair's Station, in a boat, and being unable to manage it, was swept over the dam at that place, and would have been drowned had he not received assistance from his friends. The dam is about ten feet high.

The following marriage licenses have been issued by our county clerk, since September 29, 1868. We understand that the trade in the matrimonial line is quite brisk, and that high prices and pretty girls have taken a fresh hold upon consumers, with a supply equal to the demand:

Jas. Hutchison to S. F. Dabney; J. Fagle to M. Bunfield; J. S. Whitaker to M. S. Barnett; A. T. Rankin to E. Cummins; J. W. Stephens to H. A. Lockridge; N. D. Patton to M. A. Dudley; J. E. Maston to R. A. Scott; J. P. Zoumes to E. Setters; J. K. Fowler to E. Jolly; Wm. Coleman to M. Hightland.

Our readers will find in another column, the advertisement of G. R. Sharpe, Esq., wherein he offers for sale his mill property in this city. It is situated in the northern portion of Cynthiana, and we consider it a good opening for some gentleman who desires to make money. There are three run of stone, a good steam engine, a dwelling house, a store house, and a factory house. The place has two never failing wells and a large cistern upon it. Mr. S. is about to embark in a large business elsewhere, and cannot attend to it. He will sell all or part, to suit purchasers. Call and see him.

Let us suggest to the officers of the railroad at Covington that they should build lanes to the pens where hogs are unloaded, to keep them from straying from the flock, as we hear much complaint from drovers, that there are men in that region, who do a good business spiriting away two or three hogs a day, and returning them when five dollars each is paid as a reward. It is rather too severe.

At the depot in this city a long switch is being laid on the east side of the road.

On last Monday night, the freight train, down from this place, run off the track, doing but little or no damage other than detaining until quite late, the passenger train for Lexington.

A large number of hogs are being shipped to Covington from this place.

Our young friend, Walter L. Hawkins, but recently a citizen of this city, and connected with Jno. W. Reneker, in the drug business, has gone to Cincinnati, and has embarked in the General Commission business. The name of the firm is Sprigmann, Hawkins & Co., and the house can be found at No. 20 Public Landing, Cincinnati. We have known Mr. Hawkins from boyhood, and take pleasure in saying, that he is a gentleman, a good citizen, and worthy of the confidence of good people, everywhere. His business qualification are excellent.

We mentioned the fact that Mr. J. B. Cook, of Chicago, had purchased the residence of J. G. Hodges, of this city. This property is situated on Miller street between Pike and Pleasant streets, and is, perhaps, without exception, the most beautiful location in this part of the State. The house is old style, and therefore not in accordance with prevailing fashion and taste, but we are informed that the site upon which it stands will be soon occupied by an elegant structure, with all the modern improvements, and that two others will also be built upon the property by its present owner.

Cynthiana, Nov. 30, 1868.

Mr. Editor:—In changing my home in Cynthiana for another on the distant Pacific slope, I feel that I ought to say a word to those here who have so kindly and generously taken me by the hand and made my stay among them so pleasant. Without a single exception, I have been treated by those with whom I have been thrown, with more marked respect, than as a stranger. I could reasonably have expected. Nothing could induce me to change so fine a start in a new home, except that of being with those who are near and dear to me by nature—but as the opportunity has been presented for me to emigrate to California, with my entire family, I have reluctantly given up my pleasant home here to accompany them. To the many friends here who have entrusted their sick in my hands, after so short an acquaintance, I feel peculiarly grateful—and especially to my partner in my profession and his family, do I deeply feel and publicly express my most lasting gratitude.

Respectfully,

JAS. F. PRESSLEY.

SALE.

Harrison Circuit Court, Kentucky.
M. L. Broadwell, plaintiff, against
C. Walton, &c., defendant.

BY virtue of a Judgement and Order of Sale of the Harrison Circuit Court, rendered at the November term, thereof, 1868, in the above cause, I shall proceed to offer for sale at the Court House door in Cynthiana, to the highest bidder,

At Public Auction,
ON MONDAY DECEMBER 14TH, 1868,
(Being county court day,) upon a credit of six months, the following described property, to-wit:

Two lots each about 38 feet front, on the west side of Main street, extending back westwardly about 125 feet. One of said lots is bounded on the north by an alley, and the other extends back to water street. The said lots were formerly occupied by the residence of S. E. Broadwell, dec'd.

For the purchase price, the purchaser, with approved surety or sureties, must execute bond, bearing legal interest from the day of sale, according to law. Bidders will be prepared to comply promptly with these terms.
